SAN FERMO

Broken Glass and Guest Incident Procedure

Applies to all FOH and BOH staff. The person in charge (PIC) is the manager on duty, or the Maître d' once the manager leaves.

When glass breaks

- Call it out. Say "broken glass" so everyone nearby stops. Never pick up glass with bare hands. Use a dustpan, broom or gloves.
- In or near the ice well, or near garnishes or prep: burn the ice. Empty the well completely and melt what's left with hot water. Throw out every garnish, open ingredient and piece of glassware within range. Wipe the area down. A second person checks the empty well with a flashlight before it gets re-iced.
- In the glass washer or dish machine: stop the machine, drain it, pull the racks and clean the screens and filter. Rewash everything that was in that load before running it again.
- Chipped or cracked glassware: pull it from service immediately. Look over each glass before building a drink in it.
- Disposal: broken glass goes in the broken-glass container, never loose in the regular trash.

If a guest finds something in their food or drink, or is hurt

1. Get the PIC to the table right away. The server stays with the guest until the PIC arrives.
2. Take care of the guest first. Offer water, clean napkins and first aid. Ask if they want medical help. Call 911 for anything serious.
3. Keep everything. Take the drink or plate, the glass, the object and any napkin or item with blood on it. Put them together in a sealed bag or container labeled with the date, time, table and your name, and store them in the office. Do not wash or throw any of it away. If a guest asks for something to be kept, it is kept.
4. Take photos of the object, the glass or plate, and the area.
5. Stick to what you saw. Apologize for what happened. Don't guess at the cause or say whose fault it was. Comps are at the PIC's discretion.
6. Get contact details: name, phone and email for the guest and anyone in their party, plus the names of any staff or guests who saw it.
7. Check and clean the area using the broken-glass steps above.
8. Notify the GM the same night by phone or text, before the end of the shift.

Write it down the same night

Before leaving, the PIC emails a written report to the GM. It must include: the date and time; the table; the guest's name and contact information; exactly what happened and what the guest said; who responded and what they did; what was kept and where it is; photos; the staff on duty; and any witnesses. Every staff member involved adds a short written account within 24 hours.

After the incident

- All follow-up with the guest goes through ownership. Staff do not contact the guest, discuss the incident with other guests, or post about it.
- Keep every email, text and log about the incident. Do not delete any of it.
